

Whitiara Primary School

new pedagogies called for a fresh approach to learning spaces.

furnware®

When Whitiara School adopted new teaching practices, staff realised they needed a new environment to match. They set about creating flexible spaces with state-of-the-art furniture to support learning.

Whitiara School Principal, Paul Cooper had been studying the future of education and current teaching trends and believed collaborative inquiry learning was the way to go. He and his team partnered with Furnware to help realise the vision for their new learning environments.

Collaboration is at the heart of the Whitiara enquiry-learning mode. Group work is key so flexible learning spaces were a must. Furnware suggested a combination of group tables and Bodyfurn® Sled Chairs in each centre, promoting long-term comfort for students.
